City council unanimously passed a motion to send a letter to Telus and the Telecommunications Workers Union urging them both to come back to the bargaining table, at the regular meeting on Monday morning.

"We have a number of developments in the city right now and developers want to get their telephone service in," said Mayor Wayne Dahlen after the meeting. "I know that Telus is trying to do their best with some of their management folks that are working, trying to pick up the load. But, there is a lot of work out there, and it is starting to affect us as a city and our getting some of these projects on the way for the winter."

Dahlen introduced the motion during the mayor's business portion of the
